

DIDIER BLANCHET

Head of the National Accounts and Economic Studies Directorate at the INSEE (Statistics France)

Didier Blanchet is currently the Head of the National Accounts and Economic Studies Directorate at INSEE (The French National Institute of Statistics and Economic Studies). In the past, he worked as a researcher at the French National Institute of Demographic Studies. Among other positions held at INSEE, he was the Head of the Employment, Labour and Income Department (1999 to 2003), Head of the Economic studies department (from 2003 to 2011) and Editor-in-Chief of Economie et Statistique (2011 to 2016). He was one of the rapporteurs of the Stiglitz-Sen-Fitoussi Commission in 2009; he is a co-author, together with, Marc Fleurbaey of the publication "Beyond GDP: measuring welfare and assessing sustainability" (Oxford University Press, 2014). He is the holder of PhD in economics.