

CAROLINE WILLEKE
Deputy Director General
European Central Bank's Statistics Department

Since the beginning of 2018, Caroline Willeke has been holding the position of Deputy Director General of the European Central Bank's Statistics Department. Previously, she was working in various managerial positions in the areas of Statistics and Economics at the European Central Bank. Her focus areas are macroeconomic statistics and surveys. She has been the Chair of various ESCB Working Groups and member of several European statistical bodies. She is the author of various articles on central banking, monetary analysis and statistics. Mrs Willeke holds a Ph.D. in Economics from the University of Cologne.

Dr. SILKE STAPEL-WEBER
Director General Statistics
European Central Bank

Silke Stapel-Weber is the Director General for Statistics and the Chief Data Officer of the European Central Bank. The Directorate of General Statistics provides statistical products and services to the ECB, the European Systemic Risk Board, other European and International organisations and the public at large. Ms Stapel-Weber represents the ECB in various professional bodies, including the Inter-Agency Group (which involves the UN, IMF, ECB, BIS, World Bank, OECD and the European Commission), the Irving Fisher Committee (member of the IFC Executive) and in the G-20 context. Ms Stapel-Weber chairs the Statistics Committee of the ECB and is an elected member of the International Statistical Institute. Ms Stapel-Weber holds a Ph.D. from the University of Economics Berlin.